

I feel deregulating ownership of the broadcast/media/journalism industries will lead to a lessening of the public's right to exposure of differing opinions. Our wonderful republic requires the aforementioned exposure to make informed choices. Any diminishing of this public right may be unconstitutional. Does not freedom of the press address this right to exposure?